

April 22nd

Dear Dr. McDaniel,

It has occurred to me several times in the last few days that I should write to you. I'm not sure why and certainly have no reason to think that you would particularly care to hear from me.

But I feel that I should tell you - both as a person and as a teacher, you have had a definite influence in my life. It has been nearly two years since I left Eastern, but I still am aware of being affected by things I saw you do and heard you say.

I remember that you were always willing to take time for your students. On several occasions I came to your office because I was upset by things you had said in class. You took time to listen and always seemed very patient.

Sometimes when I'm reading from the Scripture or hearing it read, some comment that you made will pop into my head. Or I find myself saying "What would McDaniel say about that - what would his interpretation be?"

Please don't misunderstand. I'm not saying that I now agree with you 100%. (Probably not even 50%!) I just know that my faith in God has grown during the past three years. I am sure that you have been a positive factor in that growth. And I wanted you to know that.

Thank-you.
